TENTING TRAILER & PICNIC SITES

From Victoria, the garden capital of British Columbia, to historic St. John's, capital of Newfoundland, the Trans-Canada Highway opens up a wonderful world of travel adventure to camping enthusiasts. Almost 5,000 miles in length, it provides an enchanting trans-continental route through a land of unparalleled scenery and holiday fun.

Much thought has been given to those who like a vacation under canvas or in a trailer. All along this mighty artery federal and provincial authorities have carefully selected campgrounds and picnic sites that are never far from a centre of interest. Whether you prefer a towering mountain setting, gentle rolling prairielands, rich forested lakelands or a refreshing seaside locale you are sure to find something to your liking in Canada.

Tenting and trailer facilities in Canada range from minimal installations to luxurious developments with every modern convenience. Together with readily accessible picnic sites the campgrounds give motorists an opportunity to plan a relaxing journey in Canada. Locations are as abundant and varied as the colourful events and places linked by the Trans-Canada route.

Within these pages you will find a list of national and provincial facilities located along or near the Trans-Canada. There are also numerous privately operated locations in most Canadian provinces. Information on all camping and picnic sites is available from provincial tourist offices. Addresses are listed in their respective sections.

It should be noted that certain federal and provincial campgrounds place restrictions on the number of days of occupancy, generally not more than two weeks. However, when space permits, arrangements frequently can be made for extending your visit.

Camping and trailer fees are nominal and subject to change without notice.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

WHATEVER YOUR CHOICE—an ocean-side locale, a towering mountain vista or a campground near a lake warmed by the glowing sun, you will find it in British Columbia.

The distinct variations in character of the province—an old-English atmosphere lingering in the shops and tearooms on Vancouver Island; the buzz of sawmills and smell of the sea permeating industrious coastal communities; attractive valley resorts rimming the cauldron of the Fraser River; alpine parklands resting in the shadows of the peaks—make exciting fare for the highway traveller. Beginning in flower-decked Victoria, provincial capital, the Trans-Canada follows the eastern coast of Vancouver Island to the busy port of Nanaimo. Modern ferries link the island with the mainland where cosmopolitan Vancouver sprawls below the snow-capped mountains of the Coast Range.

Scenic splendour is the order of your trip as you follow the Trans-Canada up the Fraser River canyon. All along the route, excellent trout streams, panoramic views and almost every recreational facility await you. However, no electric power or sewage hookups are provided for trailers in provincial parks, and waste disposal on parking spurs is forbidden. Small trailers and camper-wagons can use existing park facilities, provided that parking a trailer does not inconvenience other park users.

Full information is available from the British Columbia Travel Bureau, Victoria, B.C. Data on Mount Revelstoke, Glacier, Yoho and Kootenay national parks may be obtained from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, Ottawa, Canada.

SPECTACULAR AND BREATH-TAKING!

Alberta sets its campgrounds in magnificence. In the heart of the Rockies lie acres of tenting, trailer and picnic sites. Leaving Yoho Park at the B.C. border, ahead lies Lake Louise meeting place of two exciting routes. Here the Trans-Canada turns south to Banff while the Ice-field Highway swings north a hundred-odd miles through glacier country to Jasper.

An ever-changing pace is afforded the visitor as he descends the Rockies into the rolling foothills of Alberta's beef-cattle country to Calgary, a modern city still cherishing the brand of "Cow Town". Directly north of this home of the great stampede lies Edmonton, burgeoning capital city of Alberta; between them some of North America's most productive oil fields. Continuing east on the Trans-Canada you cross rich wheat country and skirt the Badlands where the dinosaur romped millions of years ago. Perhaps there's time to digress 20 miles south where suddenly the Cypress Hills, oasis-like, rise out of the tumbleweed and where, by a trick of Nature, strange prehistoric plants and insects still survive, by-passed by time.

Alberta is a province with exciting cities and dense woodland replete with fish and game. Five national parks give photographers opportunities for good close-ups of big-game animals like the lordly moose, the almost-legendary buffalo, graceful deer, skilful mountain goats, wild sheep and the sometimes-too-friendly bear.

For information on camping in Alberta write to the Alberta Government Travel Bureau, Edmonton, Alberta. The Canadian Government Travel Bureau, too, will be happy to provide particulars on the national parks within this province.

SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatchewan is a land of outdoor fun, a province with room to breathe and roads to roam all over. From the vast expanse of the highly productive fertile prairies of the south which cover one-third of the province roads push north into the parklands and Pre-Cambrian shield which are clothed with lakes and forests. Wherever you travel you will find campgrounds, from the more rustic settings on the lakes of the north to the modern sites in the southern parks.

This is a land closely linked with the opening of the Canadian West. From the Alberta boundary to Manitoba you find reminders of the early fur traders, explorers, rebels like Louis Riel, and heroic North West Mounted Police (Royal Canadian Mounted Police) who with courage and diplomacy brought order to the frontier.

The Trans-Canada passes through cities with names that recall the development of this abundant land—Swift Current, Moose Jaw, Regina, Qu'Appelle and Indian Head. Many of these stories are displayed by exhibits in museums like the RCMP museum and the Natural History Museum in Regina.

There are circle routes along the Trans-Canada that take you to parks like the intriguing Cypress Hills, Moose Mountain, Buffalo Pound, Rowans Ravine, Katepwa and Echo Valley parks, as well as to the gigantic Gardiner dam. This dam is the largest earth-filled dam in Canada. It is located on the South Saskatchewan River south of the town of Outlook. The lake that is being formed behind the dam stretches more than 150 miles and has a shore-line of over 500. A second dam near Elbow keeps the water from flooding the Qu'Appelle Valley.

If you prefer to push further north take a trip on one of the three northern roads, The Hanson Lake Road, The Big River Road or the La Ronge Road. All three of these roads push through the parklands to the many lakes located there.

You are sure of a spontaneous welcome in Saskatchewan—prairie people are quick to make a stranger feel at home.

A complete list of government and privately operated campgrounds and facilities in the Prince Albert National Park may be obtained from The Tourist Development Branch, Power Building, Regina, Saskatchewan.

MANITOBA

A FRESH PACE and changing terrain welcome the traveller to the land of the "Great Spirit's Voice". In Manitoba the broad plains sweeping in from the west surrender to lakelands and vast forest playgrounds.

The variety and abundance of tenting and trailer sites is a camper's delight—a grassland slope along the Assiniboine River valley; a roadside location near the bustling centres of Brandon, Portage la Prairie, or the sophisticated capital city of Winnipeg; or, perhaps, a campsite in the woodland vacation region of Falcon Lake beach in Whiteshell Provincial Park. Riding Mountain National Park, atop a scenic plateau 66 miles north of Brandon in the western section of the province, is among the favourite recreation areas, with tenting and trailer facilities.

Manitoba is a region of historic achievement as well as outdoors beauty.

It was in the Red River country the Hudson's Bay Company and the North West Company firmly established the northern fur trade with the Indians, and the old Red River carts pushed out to new frontiers from the bridgeheads of settlement around Fort Garry, now Winnipeg.

Exceptional opportunities for a fun-filled holiday are always near at hand with golfing, boating, bathing and other summer fare.

Quiet woodland campgrounds greet visitors to Whiteshell Provincial Park

Complete information on Manitoba's camping and picnic areas is available from the Tourist Branch, Winnipeg, Manitoba. For complete details on facilities in Riding Mountain National Park, write to the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

ONTARIO

LONG A FAVORITE GOAL of campers seeking the pleasures of a lakeland vacation, Ontario boasts over a quarter of a million lakes and networks of waterways, making the province especially attractive to aquatic enthusiasts.

The Trans-Canada Highway through Ontario presents vivid contrasts between recently opened wilderness sections, highly developed resort centres, industrial communities and historic locales. From the great maskinonge waters of the Lake of the Woods at the border of Manitoba the route sweeps down to the twin cities of Fort William and Port Arthur and around Lake Superior, through the big-game country of the Algoma district to the international border city of Sault Ste. Marie. Now it turns east along Georgian Bay to Sudbury, home of the world's greatest nickel mine, thence south-east past the popular Muskoka and Lake of Bays vacation areas into Peterborough, hub of the beautiful Kawartha Lakes region. Still heading east you pass through the "Land of Lakes" and Rideau Lakes sections on the way to picturesque Ottawa, the Canadian capital. From this point the highway skirts the Ottawa River, historic route of the early explorers — Champlain, La Vérendrye, LaSalle and Étienne Brulé — and enters Quebec province a short distance from Montreal.

Ontario's Kawartha Lakes region offers many picturesque campsites like this secluded point

A complete guide on campgrounds and roadside parks in Ontario is available from the Department of Tourism and Information, Toronto, Ontario. Information on the three national parks in this province, "Georgian Bay Islands", "St. Lawrence Islands" and "Point Pelee", can be provided by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

QUÉBEC

AN EXCITING TOUCH of old-world flavor mingling with new-world vigor gives the province of Québec a special charm. A land of vivid contrasts, French-Canada, as it is often called, is at times reminiscent of 17th century France; at others, great skyscrapers of glass and steel tower above the turrets of chateaux of long ago.

While for the moment one must leave the Trans-Canada to find a government-operated campground, Québec is taking large strides to provide locations along this principal artery and other main highways. The near future will see established a network of picnic sites and tenting trailer parks in areas of historic significance and natural beauty. Meantime visitors will find excellent privately-operated facilities throughout the province in addition to the magnificent parks described on the next page.

From the Ontario border the Trans-Canada leads to cosmopolitan Montréal, past historic and charming centres such as the walled city of Québec, thence along the great St. Lawrence seaway to Rivière-du-Loup. From here, starting point for a swing around the sea-scarred bluffs of Gaspé Peninsula, the route turns south to the province of New Brunswick. Throughout your journey you move through history, delight in French-Canadian cuisine and are warmed by the unmatched hospitality of les canadiens-français.

Information on privately operated campgrounds and picnic areas in addition to provincial facilities is available from the Department of Tourism, Fish and Game, Québec City, Québec.

Québec offers scenic campsites often close to points of historic interest

NEW BRUNSWICK

A CORDIAL WELCOME greets the camper in New Brunswick. Almost immediately upon crossing the border the visitor may enjoy a pleasant stopover in a quiet wooded grove of spruce and pine. Throughout "Canada's picture province" there's a wide choice of locations ranging from famous seaside or lakeland resort areas to woodland campsites beside outstanding trout and salmon waters.

From the Quebec border, the Trans-Canada Highway swings past Edmunston, pulp and paper centre, and along the rolling Saint John River valley to the historic city of Fredericton, capital of New Brunswick. It then turns east into the scenic Grand Lake, south towards the notable handicraft centre of Sussex region, and east again past the intriguing Magnetic Hill into Moncton — "hub of the Maritimes". Before proceeding south-east for your journey to Prince Edward Island or Nova Scotia, be sure to see the famous tidal bore created by the phenomenal tides of the Bay of Fundy as they sweep up and down the Petitcodiac River.

For further particulars on New Brunswick's camping and picnic facilities write to the Travel Bureau, Fredericton, New Brunswick. The Canadian Government Travel Bureau can provide additional details on Fundy National Park.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND

"THE FAIREST THAT MAY POSSIBLY BE SEEN" — Jacques Cartier said of Prince Edward Island in 1534 and many a visitor will attest to this description today. Whether under canvas or in a mobile home you will find beautiful campgrounds in keeping with the pastoral beauty of the "Garden of the Gulf".

Here, wrapped in a neat little vacation package is one of North America's most pleasant travel attractions. You are always close to green, rolling meadowlands and soft, sandy, seaside beaches and warmed by "the Islanders'" hospitality.

At the very heart of the island lies Charlottetown, provincial capital, where the First Conference on Canadian Confederation took place in 1864. To mark the centenary of this historic meeting Confederation Centre was opened in 1964. Here, in this combined theatre, art gallery and museum, a summer festival is planned each year for July and August.

In all corners of the island campers will find ample accommodation in public campgrounds and plenty of opportunity to relax. You cross to the island from Cape Tormentine, New Brunswick, to Borden; or from Caribou, Nova Scotia, to Wood Islands via comfortable and convenient ferry vessels.

Information on camping and picnic sites in other sections of Prince Edward Island may be obtained from the Travel Bureau, Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, while further particulars concerning Prince Edward Island National Park are available from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

Holiday fun continues after dusk on Prince Edward Island—perhaps with a clambake on the beach, celebrations in town or, again, just a quiet evening outside your tent recounting events of a crowded day.

NOVA SCOTIA

FOR FUN-FILLED DAYS and restful nights cool, pine-scented Nova Scotia is a favorite ocean playground of caravaners and canvas-dwellers.

The Trans-Canada is your highway to holiday adventure. South and west from Truro's mammoth tides lies Canada's front door, Halifax; the valley of Longfellow's Evangeline; and stockaded Port Royal. But the campers' road takes you east and north into wild and beautiful Cape Breton, to edge the tideless inland sea of Bras d'Or Lake and on into the Highlands Park where tenting, trailer and picnic sites nestle by ocean and river side.

It is a family vacation land. Smooth, sandy beaches, touched by the gentle ripple of freshwater lakes or rolling surf of the Atlantic, are havens for safe swimming. Deep sea and inland fishing, boating, golfing, tennis, crowd the hours making one's holiday seem all too short.

So much to see and do: the summer's calendar is punctuated by colorful events and the stirrings of history are all about.

From the first skirl of the bagpipes greeting visitors at Amherst near the New Brunswick border to the sounds of the Gaelic heard in Cape Breton highlands, the fibre of Scottish ancestry persists, unique in its Canadian blend. The thread of French-Acadian culture — stern history, too, and the Loyalists who fled New England in the 1700's, enrich the fabric of this long-settled land.

A pleasant campground beside the renowned Cabot Trail in Cape Breton Island, Nova Scotia

The campgrounds and picnic sites listed are augmented by a wide choice of private operations and other public locations throughout the province. Write the Nova Scotia Travel Bureau for full particulars. Additional information on Cape Breton Highlands National Park is available from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

NEWFOUNDLAND

WITH SPECIAL APPEAL for the outdoorsman Newfoundland campgrounds are lodged in rugged sylvan settings and dotted alongside some of the world's finest salmon and trout waters. Exciting deep-sea fishing is always within easy reach.

From Port Aux Basques to St. John's, historic capital of Newfoundland, the Trans-Canada follows a diversified course of 587 miles. The "adventure road" takes you to the great pulp and paper centres of Corner Brook and Grand Falls, through renowned moose and caribou country, into intriguing fishing communities, past the international airport of Gander and into beautiful Terra Nova National Park.

Echoes from the past are strong. You may hear romantic legends told in accents of Devonshire unchanged since Shakespeare's time; set foot on the shores where the Vikings trod and John Cabot claimed his "new found land".

Canadian National Railways provides comfortable daily transportation for 500 passengers and 120 cars on the M.V. "William Carson" between North Sydney, N.S. and Port Aux Basques. It's a trip to an island of friendly, relaxed living — ideal for campers.

For further details on camping in this province write to the Newfoundland Tourist Development Office, St. John's, Newfoundland. Additional information on Terra Nova National Park may be obtained from the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.
